

Miguel Medina, a member of the Executive Committee (ExCom) of the ASCE Committee on Adaptation to a Changing Climate (CACC) and an ASCE Fellow, delivered a keynote address entitled “Climate Change Effects in Urban Water Systems” at the 10th International Perspective on Water Resources & the Environment conference in Cartagena, Colombia on December 5th, 2018. His research was highlighted in a panel discussion. The presentation included elements of ASCE Manual of Practice 140 [Climate Resilient Infrastructure: Adaptive Design and Risk Management].